Quality Assessment Project and National Core Indicators ©

This report contains regional center level results from California's statewide National Core Indicator (NCI) Adult Family Survey data collection from fiscal year 2013-2014 (FY 13/14) in accordance with Welfare and Institutions Code (WIC), Section 4571. WIC, Section 4571 directs the Department of Developmental Services (DDS) to collect accurate, reliable, and valid consumer and family satisfaction measures as well as individual outcome data. In California, data from this project will be used to review and benchmark statewide and regional center developmental disability service system performance.¹ This report shows Adult Family Survey findings from Redwood Coast Regional Center (RCRC) compared to the California statewide and NCI averages. Regional centers can use this report to help guide strategic planning and monitor systemic changes.

What is NCI?

The NCI program is a voluntary effort by state developmental disability agencies to gauge and track their own performance using a common and nationally validated set of measures. The effort is coordinated by the National Association of State Directors of Developmental Disabilities Services (NASDDDS) in collaboration with the Human Services Research Institute (HSRI). NCI has developed a set of more than 100 standard performance measures (or "indicators") that states use to assess the outcomes of services provided to individuals and their families. These indicators focus on areas such as: employment, rights, service planning, community inclusion, choice, health, and safety. During the 2013-14 data collection cycle, 40 states, the District of Columbia and 22 sub-state entities participated in NCI.

What is the NCI Adult Family Survey?

The NCI Adult Family Survey is a mail-in survey sent to families who have an adult family member with an intellectual/developmental disability living in the home who receives services from one of California's regional centers. The survey is used to gather data on family outcomes, and it is refined and tested to ensure that it is valid and reliable. The survey collects demographic information on the individual receiving services and the survey respondent (most often the individual's parent) as well as information on services and supports received. It contains six groupings of questions that probe specific areas of quality service provision: information and planning, access and delivery of services, choice and control, community connections, satisfaction, and family outcomes. Respondents also have the option of writing open-ended comments concerning their family's participation in the service system.

What topics are covered by the survey?

The National Core Indicators are organized by topic or "domain." Each domain consists of sub-domains, and each sub-domain is associated with a particular area of concern. The NCI Adult Family Survey includes items to measure the Family Outcomes domain. The table on the following page lists the NCI Family Surveys sub-domains and concern statements.

TABLE 1. NCI FAMILY SURVEY INDICATORS – SUB-DOMAINS AND CONCERN STATEMENTS

| Sub-Domain | Concern Statement |
|--------------------------------------|--|
| Information and Planning | Families/family members with disabilities have the information and support necessary to plan for their services and supports. |
| Access & Support Delivery | Families/family members with disabilities get the services and supports they need. |
| Choice & Control | Families/family members with disabilities determine the services and supports they receive and the individuals or agencies who provide them. |
| Community Connections | Family members with disabilities use integrated community services and participate in everyday community activities. |
| Satisfaction | Families/family members with disabilities receive adequate and satisfactory supports. |
| Family Outcomes | Individual and family supports make a positive difference in the lives of families. |

How were people selected to participate?

For each regional center, DDS selected a random sample of families who had an adult with an intellectual/developmental disability living at home and received at least one direct service or support other than service coordination.

The State Council on Developmental Disabilities mailed out a paper survey to families selected in their sample. A final sample size of 400 from each regional center guarantees a +/- 5% margin of error and a 95% confidence level when interpreting the results. Both the confidence interval and margin of error used are widely acceptable for reviewing results, regardless of population size. Some regional centers had a lower than expected return rate and received fewer than 400 surveys; all regional centers reached a minimum threshold of a margin of error no greater than +/- 7%.

Limitations of Data

The NCI Adult Family Survey tool is not intended to be used for monitoring individuals or providers, but rather for assessing system-wide performance. The NCI and California averages should not be interpreted as necessarily defining “acceptable” levels of performance or satisfaction, nor does it provide benchmarks for acceptable or unacceptable levels of performance for each indicator. Instead, it describes average levels of performance or satisfaction across the State. It is up to public managers, policy-makers, and other stakeholders to decide what is an acceptable or unacceptable result (i.e., percentage of individuals achieving the indicated outcome).

What is contained in this report?

This report illustrates FY 13/14 NCI Adult Family Survey demographic and outcome results from RCRC compared to the California statewide average, and NCI Average. The NCI Average is calculated by averaging all states’ estimates – it is an “average of averages”, therefore, each state contributes the same weight to the NCI Average, including California.

In FY 13/14, 14 states conducted the Adult Family Survey. All results are shown in chart form. Charts do not display the number of respondents to each question. Some questions may have a low response rate, particularly questions about knowledge and use of regional center money, reporting grievances, and abuse or neglect. Regional centers with fewer than 20 responses to a particular question were excluded from analysis for that question. The number of responses for each question are included in the state report. The state and regional center data results for this survey can be found online at <http://www.dds.ca.gov/QA/>.
